WHY PARTNER WITH DHL?

We believe that by integrating packaging services within a distribution center (DC) or manufacturing facility, and as far down the supply chain as possible, we can reduce your costs and improve sustainability, service and speed to market.

By packaging products in-DC, and downstream, we not only save you the cost of transporting goods between a warehouse and a contract packager, we improve your speed to market, by positioning our services closer to the end consumer. This also allows us to respond quicker to their changes in demand.

In addition, by partnering with us, you reduce the number of suppliers in your network by working with a flexible, agile third party logistics provider that can assist with the movement, packaging and warehousing of your products end-to-end.

PACKAGING SERVICES

More than three-quarters of all goods sold worldwide require some form of packaging, making it an important process within the supply chain.

Packaging processes are in a constant state of change with the introduction of new products, technologies and demands from end consumers. Companies are expected to stay ahead of these changes as well as take into account the growing importance of sustainable packaging, and a rising e-commerce industry.
