

Case Study: DHL MEDICAL EXPRESS

Transport of specimens and investigational drugs in clinical trials

Proper logistics is essential to the success of clinical trials associated with the development of new drugs. From cross-border clinical sites to laboratories, international transportation requires speed and reliability.

- Seamless logistics operations with no waste and top priority handling
- Combined with the DHL ThermoBox, temperature-sensitive contents can be delivered quickly.
- Compliant with UN3373 Category B and other aviation dangerous goods regulations
- We can also provide and replenish dry ice and include temperature monitoring equipment, depending on your needs.

*The elapsed time provided is based on past data and may not reflect the exact duration for future cases.

